

THE ROLES WE PLAY: INTRODUCING THE PROJECT...

Posted on 22 September 2015

Excerpt from the August 2015 The Roles We Play newsletter.

Dear friends,
We would like to introduce The Roles We Play:
Recognising the Contribution of People in Poverty; a full-colour publication, exhibition and multi-media project from ATD Fourth World and artist and photographer Eva Sajovic.

"The work aims to highlight the efforts and validate the achievements of people who experience poverty and social exclusion in the UK and to challenge the negative attitudes often held towards such people."

Dann Kenningham, project coordinator

The Roles We Play: Recognising the Contribution of People in Poverty is a collection of photographic portraits and self-written biographies exploring the roles played by those living in poverty within their families, communities and society at large.

When we started this project, the individuals and families at ATD Fourth wanted The Roles We Play to offer a new and refreshing perspective on the lives of those facing poverty in the UK. We wanted the project to help to build new perceptions of others around us, strengthen community cohesion and encourage positive interaction between social groups.

Download the full newsletter.

For more information about The Roles We Play see www.atd-uk.org or www.therolesweplay.co.uk.