

Activity: Entourage Community

In this campaign Newsletter we are going to explore which places in your community or neighbourhood make you feel good, and which places don't.

1. Individual activity:

From the cards with symbols provided, choose those representing places around you. Think whether these places make you feel good or not good. If you think there are important places missing, make new cards with symbols showing them.

Ask yourself if these places make you feel good or not good, and why. And whether these places enrich your heart or your brain or both, and how? Based on this, stick the symbols onto the jigsaw pieces. Then assemble the pieces of your two jigsaw puzzles, and finally, think about what connects your heart to your brain.

2. Group activity:

Once you have heard and understood what places are important to each child in your group and how they nourish their heart and brain, think together about what place is still missing in your community that would be really needed to make everyone feel good. This place may already exist so what is it?

Once you have agreed on this, draw a big version of a symbol representing it.

This is the symbol we ask you to send to Taporí. It will be a campaign treasure.

Once you have made your collages, paintings, drawings or other works, illustrating your connected heart and brain, keep them where you have decided to put your treasures! Don't forget to send your collective work to Taporí International: taporí@taporí.org
